Nature Is Wonderful
Various Kinds of Courage

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has appointed Harlan F. Stone Attorney-General. He is an able lawyer, recently dean of Columbia Law School, and a great authority on constitutional law.

The President has picked out a good man, who will be neither for nor against anybody, but for the laws. His appointment may disappoint some "interests" that demand "our kind" of a man.

MR. HUGHES, the war Prime Minister of Australia, told some Americans about Australia yesterday in New York city.

Mr. Hughes' country, stretching three thousand miles from Sydney to Perth, more than two thousand miles from north to south, with a population of only 6,000,000 white people, stands as the vanguard of western civilization. Just beyond is the shadow of a thousand million Asiatics.

What Mr. Hughes had to say interests every man in America. This column will be devoted to his talk, presently, perhaps on Sunday or Monday next.

NATURE IS "wonderful." There are birds like animals; animals like birds. The strangeness of Creation is inexhaustible. The University of Pennsylvania sends an expedition to catch an hoazin, bird that breaks stones with its beak, swims like a duck, flies like a bat. The same expedition will look also for a "bellbird." Instead of singing, it tinkles like a bell.

There are snakes that swallow their young to protect them, then let them out again. There is a lady toad that lays her eggs on the back of her husband, who hops around cheerfully in the sunlight, hatching the load. Nature really is wonderful.

THERE ARE various kinds of courage. Fighting courage is the most important perhaps in such a civilization as ours. The courage to express your opinions in the face of opposition is real courage also. That should be remembered by those that meet Bertrand Russell on his visit to America.

He opposed conscription, but bear in mind that he is fifty-two years old and conscription could not have touched HIM. That is different from opposition by a husky man in his youth, who dislikes the thought of going under fire.

THIS IS a prosperous country, worth defending. Yesterday 1,500,000 stockholders received little envelopes containing dividends amounting to more than $250,000,000. If you didn't get any of the dividend envelopes, don't waste time envying or hating those that got them. Save your money, invest it, and you can get dividends also. Except for the very unfortunate there is no need to stay really poor in this country.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE character of forces, apparently entire different, is a great aid to science. You send out an electric wave, transform it into a sound wave, and the radio works.

French experimenters have literally transformed the light from Capella, a sun billions of miles away, into sound waves,

Summons For Weeks in Fraud Inquiry

NEW HAVEN DEAL PROBED

"NOT WANTED!" ONLY 3 YEARS OLD AND CAST OFF AT BIG HOTEL

Little abandoned Hotel Touraine boy thinks his name is "Frankie," but he tells the police he is not sure.

Puzzled at fuss being made over him, deserted youngster tries to remember who his parents are.

Laughs when he points out a portly police sergeant as being his papa at the Lagrange street station.

Lonely boy is very proud of his black fur cap and smiles cheerfully at all who speak to him.

"Rode on choo-choos yesterday," says "Frankie when questioned at Chardon Street Home, where he was taken.

Radio Fans Show They'll Pay for Programs

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 3.—Radio fans are willing to share a part of the cost of programs which are becoming more expensive since musicians refuse to take part without pay.

Ten days ago a local station broadcast an invitation to those listening in to purchase "seats" in the "invisible theatre" and in this way help defray the expense.

To date $10,000 has been received from 1,500 fans in virtually every State, Canada and Mexico, in addition to 50,000 requests for further information. The contributions are from $1 to $100, the average being $5. A woman wrote she would save ten cents a week for "the cause."

The station, the first to inaugurate the plan of having the fans bear part of the expense, expects to raise $100,000 to be held in trust to pay for its programs.

CONEY ISLAND IS MENACED BY $100,000 FIRE

Hotel and Two Bungalows Destroyed; Woman Hurt in Leap for Her Life

New York, April 3 (I.N.S.).—Fire early today swept along the Coney Island boardwalk, destroying the three-story Whitney Hotel and two bungalows.

The damage was estimated at $100,000.

The fire attracted spectators from all over the city.

While two fireboats poured water on the blazing boardwalk, firemen prevented the flames from spreading to Luna Park and the Steeplechase.

Panic stricken, Mrs. Mary Kennedy, wife of the hotel caretaker, jumped from the second story of the hotel and was internally injured.

KLAN TRIES TO RULE MAINE

Ku Kluxers Make Education Big Issue at Convention of Republicans

Portland, Me., April 3.—Ku Klux Klanism was injected into the Republican State Convention preliminaries as 1,500 delegates gathered for the convention in City Hall today.

K. K. K. supporters brought out a platform plank calling for compulsory attendance at public schools of all children in Maine of school age. Anti-Kluxers said they would fight the proposal to the last ditch in the convention.

The choice of fifteen delegates to the Republican National Convention favorable to President Coolidge, but unpledged, appeared probable.

The tentative draft of the platform expresses confidence in President Coolidge and calls emphatically for law enforcement.

In his address as temporary chairman Charles P. Barnes of Houlton, former speaker of the Maine House, praised Republican party achievements at Washington, eulogized the late President Harding and referred to President Coolidge in these words:

BAXTER NOT TO RUN.

"We express the unanimous sentiment of our people at home when we say that the Maine delegates to Cleveland shall be made up of those who will use every honorable effort to bring about the nomination of Law and Order Coolidge for President."

Detectives Baffled in Search for Parents of Youngster Abandoned by Young Man at the Touraine—Boy Unable to Give Clew Except That He Came on "Choo-Choo."

A chubby-faced, brown-eyed boy of three, romping about in the matron's room of the Chardon Street Home, has presented a baffling problem to the Boston police.

The child was abandoned in the lobby of the Hotel Touraine by a young man who turned him over to an elevator operator, and a score of Boston's cleverest detectives have been unable to cover the slightest clew as to the boy's parentage or where he came from.

Barely able to talk, the youngster is unable to tell anything about himself upon which the police could base their search for the missing parents.

LEFT BY MAN

The only thing the police know for a certainty is that a young man, his outer garment a sailor's sea jacket, entered the lobby of the Hotel Touraine, leading the child. Walking over to Philip Maloney, an elevator boy whose home is at No. 123 Pembroke street, he handed over the boy and a small handbag.

"Here, take this kid up to Room No. 605. My sister is up there, said the stranger.

A moment or two later, when the elevator boy returned to the lobby with his little charge, after finding Room 605 unoccupied, the stranger had vanished.

Of everybody around the hotel the child was the least concerned. He answered what simple questions he could and smilingly showed his dimples when the questions were beyond his comprehension.

CLOSELY QUESTIONED.

The hotel manager turned the boy over to the Lagrange street police. The police closely questioned the little fellow, but learned nothing.

Later the boy was turned over to the matron at the Chardon Street Home.

Apparently the youngster does not give a thought to those with whom he lived. His face wreathed in smiles, the child plays about in the matron's room, eager and ready to recite the dozen nursery rhymes he knows.

Questioned by the matron and by the police, the boy is willing to agree that his name is "Frank," "John" or "Charley" or any other name that is suggested to him.

When asked his last name the youngster lisps something that sounds like "Tupperton" or "Tuskey," while at times he insists his name is Frank. This has almost convinced the authorities the boy's name is Frank Tucker, or a name sounding very similar.

The matron of the home does not believe the child has been living with his mother.

"When we get such youngsters here, they generally cry for their

AIKEN RESIGNS AS SHAWMUT DIRECTOR

Alfred L. Aiken has resigned the chairmanship of the board of directors of the National Shawmut Bank. He had held that position since September 12, 1923, prior to which he had been president. He came to the National Shawmut Bank as president from governorship of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston in December, 1917.

Mr. Aiken also resigned from the board of directors.

The Cunard Line was fined $573 for having excess liquor stores on the Berengaria.

SUMMONS WEEKS IN AIR FRAUD

Ousted War Bureau Employe Charges Plot to Discredit His Evidence in Probe

Washington, April 3.—The storm-swept course of the Daugherty investigating committee took a sudden turning today which led it into a swirl of charges and recriminations centering in the War Department.

Thomas F. Lane, until a few days ago chief adviser to Major-General Patrick, chief of the army air service, testified that when he refused to comply with the order to "keep away" from the committee, he was dismissed from the air service and now must have come rifled of valuable papers bearing on aircraft transactions.

Senator Wheeler, the committee member, immediately instructed the committee clerk to "get out a subpoena for the Secretary of War.

DAUGHERTY ACCUSED BY CONRAD CROOKER

B. & M. Counsel, Called in the Probe, Tells of Effort to Control Directorate

The alleged activities of Henry M. Daugherty, deposed Attorney-General of the United States, in affairs of New England railroads while he was chief law officer of the nation are being proved by the Brookhart committee in Washington, it became known today.

Conrad W. Crooker, counsel for the Boston & Maine Railroad Stockholders' Protective Association, is the first witness to be summoned from New England in connection with the investigation.

Record disclosures in this city caused this association to be sent on this mission. At the hearing of the committee in the suit of Edmund D. Codman against the New Haven Railroad and board being held before Attorney Arthur Brandeis, Crooker made public the steps he showed how Daugherty is alleged to have used his influence to install on the board of directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad men connected by the New Haven management.

"PICKED SENTINELS."

Daugherty and the New Haven Railroad are charged with packing the General Laws of Massachusetts in carrying out their alleged malfeasances. Bayles and Hogue are termed "picked sentinels of the New Haven."

Miss Gladys M. Torrey, secretary of Mr. Crooker, who made 1,000 circulars to stockholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad, containing charges, is thought to have been an innocent factor in calling attention describing the papers" wanted.

SUMMONS FOR SECRETARY WEEKS IN AIRCRAFT FRAUD PROBE

CHARGE PLOT TO DISCREDIT TESTIMONY OF WITNESS

The subpoena was to be served at once.

Captain W. F. Volandt, the officer named by Lane as having taken the papers, followed Lane on the stand and told the committee he did advise Lane not to appear.

He admitted he had taken certain records in the possession of Lane, and said Secretary Weeks had instructed him to say that a subpoena served on the Secretary himself would be necessary to bring the papers before the committee.

CLAIMS PAPERS RIFLED.

Volandt denied that he had desired to suppress Lane's testimony; declared he had taken only "official records" from Lane's desk and brief case, and insisted that he was actuated only by a desire to see that the committee should act through the proper channels if it desired to secure possession of the documents.

Maj.-Gen. Mason Patrick

Lane had described the missing records to the committee as relating to many aircraft cases on which he had worked. These cases, he said, included the Lincoln Motors case, the Standard Aircraft case, and the Bosch Magneto case, in all of which he charged that overpayments had been made by the government.

In the Lincoln case, he said, the Department of Justice made a settlement over the protest of the War Department and "so bad" that when

Captain W. E. Volandt

Thomas F. Lane

it was broached General Patrick and the other War Department representatives "walked out" of the conference.

OUSTED BY WEEKS

Volandt insisted he was "not under orders" when he searched Lane's brief case. He said he had "suspended" Lane last Saturday when he "refused to come to the office," and that Lane was later "separated from the service" by action of Secretary Weeks.

The witness said that when Lane failed to appear at the office he had wanted him to work on the Standard and Wilgo-Knight cases in order to rush them to the Department of Justice for action. "The Standard case went over about five days ago, he said, but denied that committee proceedings had any effect on the procedure with this case.

Lane's brief bag was emptied of papers at the air service office the next day, the witness said, and they were put "in the safe."

As legal adviser to the air service, Lane said, he had recommended to the Secretary of War that the government cases against the Standard Aircraft Corporation and other contractors who supplied war materials be reopened. He declared he felt "there was some ulterior purpose" behind his dismissal and that he had been shocked and pained because he had "trusted" in Captain Volandt.

SETTLED FOR $1,000,000.

As far back as 119, Lane said, he had become convinced that the situation regarding aircraft construction "was bad." The Lincoln motor case was the first he dealt with which he thought was "bad," he said. It was "settled" for $1,000,000, he added, while the government claim was more than $9,000,000.

The War Department refused to accept the settlement in the Lincoln case recommended by Attorney-General Daugherty, Lane said, "but they went ahead and settled anyhow."

Senator Wheeler directed Lane to tell in detail of the Standard Aircraft case.

"I became convinced when I first started that the situation was bad as to all of these negotiated settlements of war cases that involved huge sums of money," Lane said. "In 1919 officers in the air service resigned and were discharged. About Sloan Manufacturing Company."

In the middle of 1919 a colonel came from the Treasury Department and was put in charge.

TELLS OF LINCOLN CASE.

"The first case called to my attention was the Lincoln Motors. I was ordered to write an opinion as to a $1,000,000 item. I recommended instead that the Lincoln Motors ought to pay back $8,880,000.

"I'd bet my ears that if a suit had been filed the government would have got more than it did. I handled the case and I know what I'm talking about."

Lawyers for the receivers of the Lincoln Motors admitted greater liability, Lane asserted.

The government paid the company "a million for the privilege of cancelling that contract," Lane said, under the head of "anticipated profits." He knew of no other case in which the government had paid a nickel to any other company under similar circumstances.

Except for tax and legal expenses, Lane insisted, the government could have gotten all of the $8,000,000.

"Henry Ford had bought the Lincoln plant and the money was in the bank to the credit of the receiver," he said.

The witness then came to the case of the Standard Aircraft Corporation. Files in this case were scattered and "meagre," Lane said, "but his final judgment in August, 1919, was that the government should recover $2,300,000. The company then had pending a $3,000,000 claim of its own."

During discussions with Harry B. Mingle, head of the company, the witness said that Mingle told him of the connection of the Japanese banking firm of Mitsui & Co.

Lane declared that the Mitsui Company, in financing the Standard, had charged in $1,613,000, which "represented a loss in financing the old company."

The government paid this charge in the Standard settlements, he said. In 1919, the government, Lane said, "by a sort of a lump sum settlement, paid the Standard Aircraft about $2,700,000."

PAID FOR BIG LOSSES.

Lane said that if the War Department had sent the Standard case to the Department of Justice for action it had been done "since Monday," so far as his office knew.

Gaston B. Means was assigned by the Department of Justice to assist Lane in investigating, the witness said, and "got hold of papers" the Mitsui Company and Mingle had in safes and vaults.

"We found Mingle's private ledger," Lane went on, "and among other items we found was that $1,519,000, lost before the war by Mitsui & Co. in financing a Plainfield, N. J., plant, was charged into assets of the Standard Aircraft Corporation, and the government paid it."

Both "rent and depreciation" had been collected from the government on the same property, Lane said when "anyone with one eye" could see that one item or the other was false.

"Mr. Mingle was found dead in the city of New York some time last September," the witness remarked, saying there was "secrecy about the matter."

OVERPAID $10,800,000.

The Standard company, he said, got $2,200,000 as "amortization of plant," he said, "notwithstanding the fact that it got from sales more than the plant ever cost."

"Our final figure was that they were overpaid on amortization and depreciation about $10,800,000," he added.

RUSSIAN PAPER CHALLENGES HUGHES

Asks Him to Show Who Had Intervened in Another Nation's Affairs

Moscow, April 2.—The newspaper Evening Moscow, afternoon edition of Laboring Moscow, published by the Moscow Soviet, prints the statement that at the trial now in progress of the counter-revolutionary organization, known as the "Acting Centre" at Kiev, the disclosure had been made that members of the organization had been paid for their espionage services with American relief Administration provisions from the administration's department at Kiev.

The newspaper emphasized this statement in view of "the recent revelations before the Senate commission on the American Relief Administration's counter-revolutionary activities in Russia."

Today's Laboring Moscow takes up the subject and makes it the text of an editorial, asking Mr. Hughes to state who had intervened in another country's internal affairs. "Was it the dollar republic in Russia or vice versa?" it asks.

It does this, it says, in view of the "revelations of counter-revolutionary activity by the American Relief Administration in Russia," and the fact that Secretary Hughes has been "unable to prove his allegations against Zinovieff," head of the Communist International.

Vet With Crippled Hand Wants Job as Watchman

The careless use of an X-ray machine in a hospital, has rendered the right hand of a World War veteran useless. The veteran was a sergeant in the 82nd Division and received a relatively slight disability during his war service, but the hospital treatment crippled him for life.

This veteran is married and lives in Charlestown. He is without work and he is strongly recommended for a position as watchman.

POLICE GUARD FOR WIFE OF J. M. BARR

Fear Fugitive Will Return to Fitchburg Home and Try to Injure His Mate

Fitchburg, April 3.—Three policemen have been detailed to guard the home of Mrs. James M. Barr, here, in the belief that her husband, a fugitive paroled convict who served twenty-three years in State's prison, may come here to harm her.

Barr was given a life sentence for attacking a woman. The sentence was commuted a year ago to from thirty years to life and Barr was released by the Parole Board. Following his arrest several days ago for the theft of a handbag from a woman injured in a street car accident in Boston, he jumped bail and disappeared.

Mrs. Barr and her children strongly opposed the release of Barr when the case was before the Parole Board. She declared Barr was dangerous and they were afraid of him.

The Boston and State police and the State Parole Board have joined hands in an effort to recapture Barr.

The hangouts of bootleggers are being watched as the authorities believe Barr will start drinking and then try to visit his wife's home.

MRS. DYER SAYS HUSBAND "LOAFS" TO AVOID SUPPORTING HER

PARENTS SUED FOR $100,000

Brings an Action for Divorce Against Son of Wealthy Medford Contractor

A charge that Frederick Dyer, son of Michael Dyer, wealthy Medford contractor, is "deliberately loafing," to avoid paying separate support, was made today in Middlesex Probate Court by counsel for Mrs. Phyllis B. Dyer.

The charge was made at a hearing on Mrs. Dyer's petition for temporary order of support. Dyer has filed suit for legal separation. In a cross-libel she seeks a divorce. She has also filed suit for $100,000 against Dyer's parents, alleging alienation of affections.

At the hearing Mrs. Dyer testified she is physically unable to resume her pre-marriage vocation a stenographer, and needs his support. She was married to Dyer in September, 1923, she said, and went with him to Orlando, Fla., where the elder Dyer and former Mayor Benjamin F. Haines of Medford run a nursery.

She is now living with her parents.

Dyer testified that he was employed at the Florida nursery, but resigned after having trouble with his bride. Since then, he said, he has been working, although he has been forced to find employment. He declared he is under care of a physician.

Counsel for Mrs. Dyer asserted in court that if Dyer had been trying to find work he has been advised by [illegible] vice-president of a national [illegible]

He was also well known in financial circles of the State, having been president of the Brandon National Bank.

Spine Fractured

GLADYS STRUTHERS,
Chorus girl in "Sally, Irene and Mary" company, who died as result of mysterious mishap. The coroner said she was injured in a fall backstage. Colleagues say a kick, delivered as part of the play, caused her death.

STAGE BEAUTY DIES; MYSTERY VEILS CASE

Colleagues Say Kick Caused the Fatal Injury to "Sally, Irene and Mary" Girl

Philadelphia, April 3.—Gladys Struthers, nineteen-year-old beauty of the chorus of "Sally, Irene and Mary," playing at a local theatre, is dead at the Orthopedic Hospital, the result of a fractured spine.

The report of the coroner says that a fall backstage was responsible for her fatal injury. Friends of the dead girl and members of the "Sally, Irene and Mary" company, however, insist that a kick which she received at each performance from Eddie Dowling, star of the company, had injured her.

The opening of "Sally, Irene and Mary" is said in the lower East Side of New York. A group of girls are engaged in a heated argument in which feminine fists are flying promiscuously.

Dowling enters and tries to separate the fighters. He is slapped and mauled about and finally he delivers a kick. Up until Gladys Struthers was taken to the hospital, she received this kick.

The girl lived only twenty-four hours after being removed to the hospital. The physician who treated the case has refused to discuss the matter and has referred all inquirers to the coroner.

The police are making an effort to get in touch with the girl's mother, who lives in St. Louis.

One member of the "Sally, Irene and Mary" company declares Miss Struthers had been suffering from pains in her back for some time, but that she never complained either to the stage manager or to Mr. Dowling.

Details of the fall which Miss Struthers was said to have sustained were not forthcoming.

BIG CARGOES LANDED IN BOSTON RECENTLY

Cargoes valued at $27,321,858 were landed at the port of Boston in February. January imports were $24,357,195. And these are the two months of the year. Receipts of foreign merchandise in all of 1923 amounted to $307,567,153. Wool arrivals have been large and constitute roughly half of the import business here. Since January 1 more than 44,790,800 pounds of wool have been received at Boston. Other large items of import include coffee and hides from South America, raw cotton from Egypt and sisal from Mexico and Manila.

J. L. RILEY APPOINTED AS CITY DRAFTSMAN

John L. Riley of No. 41 Brookford street, Dorchester, was appointed today by Mayor Curley to be a draftsman in the schoolhouse department at a salary of $1,700 a year.

The Mayor also added 109 temporary employes to the street cleaning department, making a total of 200 within a week, for the Spring cleaning of streets and alleys.

WOMAN HIT BY AUTO OF RICH FIREMAN

"Buffalo Bill" Bull in $4,000 Racer Injures Cambridge Churchgoer

"Buffalo Bill" Bull, millionaire fireman of Providence and Newport, driving a $4,000 racer in which he rides to his daily fire-fighting duties, struck Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald as she was leaving St. Peter's Church, Cambridge.

Wm. T. Bull

Bull was questioned by police, but allowed to go and the police would not state whether he will be summoned to court.

The injured woman was taken to Cambridge Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. She is forty-five years old and the wife of Timothy Fitzgerald, an engineer of No. 267 Concord avenue, Cambridge.

SEPARATED FROM WIFE.

Fireman Bull came into the limelight last month when it was learned that he had joined the Providence fire department as a ladderman "for diversion," after a separation from his wife.

For a month he kept his identity secret, and it was only when he rescued a "buddy" and rushed him to the hospital in the expensive automobile he races, that he was recognized by a physician who was an old acquaintance.

Bull is the son of the late Dr. William T. Bull, celebrated cancer specialist, and nephew of the late Congressman Medville Bull of Newport. He is worth several millions in his own name.

AS A HOBBY.

He is one of several young men of wealth who have taken up fire-fighting as a hobby. But Bull went them all "one better" when he became an ordinary everyday ladderman.

According to the police, he was visiting friends in Cambridge and on his way home was driving through Concord avenue when Mrs. Fitzgerald and others were leaving the church where they attended Lenten devotions.

GOV. SMITH'S VICTORY STIRS DEMOCRATS

Washington, April 3.—The surprising and unlooked for victory of Governor Al Smith of New York in the Wisconsin primaries, inspired the political prophets of Washington today to predict that the Tammany entry in the Democratic Presidential Sweepstakes will go to Madison Square Garden next June with a strength on the first ballot of approximately 200 votes. If the New York Governor does develop this much strength on the first ballot, the many Democrats here believe, he will probably enter the balloting as one of the three leading contenders, the other two being McAdoo and Underwood. Smith's victory over McAdoo in Wisconsin was somewhat of a political shock to Democratic leaders here.

WIFE WOULDN'T LOVE HIM, SAYS SALESMAN

Declaring he "wanted to be loved, but his wife wouldn't love him," Kenneth Guile, salesman arrested with twenty-three-year-old Mary Oliver, made an emotional plea in Municipal Court today.

Guile, who lives at No. 471 Massachusetts avenue, said he "is of a funny temperament," and admitted he was to blame for the domestic troubles of himself and his wife, Beulah Guile. Every time he left the house, according to Guile, his wife accused him of going out with other women.

Judge Murray gave Guile six months' suspended sentence, and placed the Oliver woman on probation.

35 MEN NEAR DEATH IN HUDSON TUNNEL

New York, April 3.—Thirty-five laborers in the vehicular tunnel which is being constructed under the Hudson River between New York and New Jersey narrowly escaped death today, when a quantity of rock in the roof of the tunnel was loosened by the pressure of compressed air, allowing one section of the excavation to be filled with water. The blast of air caused a thirty-foot geyser to spout in the river, spinning a small river craft like a top and hurling the crew of 4 nearby caisson barge from their feet. The barge was thrown into the air and for a moment it was feared it would be wrecked.

NATIONAL PAPER IS URGED AT N. E. MEET

New York, April 3.—A movement to establish "a great national newspaper, to be printed daily except Sunday in at least three great centers," to "provide a mouthpiece for the Protestantism of the whole country," received support today at the New York Methodist conference.

A resolution by Rev. Jas. J. Henry of Poughkeepsie, offered on behalf of the pastors of the Poughkeepsie district, asked the conference to memorialize the general conference which meets in Springfield, Mass., next month for authorization of the paper. The resolution was referred to a committee.

POLICE BAFFLED BY ABANDONED BOYS MYSTERY

"Frankie" Questioned in Vain at Chardon St. Home by Officials

mothers within a few hours," said the matron. "This little fellow apparently gives no thought to his parents."

It is also believed that the boy came here from a distance. Questioned as to how he came to Boston he insists that it was in the "chocolate" train and it was "long ride."

The child's clothing is of a good grade, his little brown coat with black fur collar being an expensive garment, cut in an unusual manner, with extra pockets cut in the breast of the garment.

The boy is willing to tell anyone who asks that he is three years old, but about his home and those with whom he lives, he apparently has a supreme indifference. The boy is chubby for his age, weighs forty-five pounds and is two feet nine inches tall. While his hair is marked on the records as "blonde" in reality it is a reddish brown.

His little handbag was found to contain only children's underwear, shoes and stockings.

The man was described as about twenty-four years old, five feet, seven inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, and having light brown hair.

The abandoned child was attired in cream-colored rompers trimmed with pink and blue, a dark brown overcoat with a black collar, a fur cap, and four-buckle overshoes.

BEACH BEAUTY SAYS SHE IS INNOCENT

MRS. EILEEN GELLER

"I have never done anything wrong in my life," declares Revere divorcee and mother. She was arrested on leaving the Municipal Court here by two members of the Lynn police force on the charge of taking two dresses, valued at $65, from Lynn stores.

CASE AGAINST REVERE WOMAN PUT OFF

Mrs. Geller Must Appear in Lynn Court April 11 for Shoplifting

"I have never done anything wrong in my life."

That declaration of innocence was made today by Mrs. Eileen Geller, of No. 49 Dix street, Revere, winner of several beauty prizes at Revere Beach bathing contests, who was arrested this week on two occasions, first with stealing underclothing valued at $10 from a Boston department store, and two dresses from two Lynn stores valued at $65.

She was arrested by Inspectors Vincent Hanson and William K. Wallace of the Lynn police department as she was leaving the Municipal Court building, Boston. In the Lynn district court the case was continued until April 15. Mrs. Geller is a divorcee and has a daughter six years old.

DOG BITES BABY GUY STILLMAN ON CHEEK

Pet Turns on Child Who Figured in Famous Divorce Case

New York, April 3.—Guy Stillman, storm centre in the great feud battle in which James A. Stillman, his father, attempted to disinherit his divorced wife, Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman, was severely bitten about the face by a German police dog last Sunday morning, it was revealed today.

Little Guy, who is now four years old, has been in bed under the care of a physician all the week, but announcement was made today that he is in no danger and will soon be out at play again.

Guy was playing in a room in the Blue cottage, a small building on the Stillman estate at Pleasantville, N. Y., Pepper, a big police dog, was in the room. Guy decided to blindfold the dog. When he attempted to tie a bandage on the dog's head Pepper jumped at him and bit him on the cheek. The dog followed up the attack, but was beaten off by Mrs. Purdy, wife of the estate superintendent. Guy was taken to the main house of the estate and Dr. Jones of Pleasantville was called.

Hub Junior League Debaters Defeat New York Team, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE question was, "Is the Peruvian Indian a Detriment to Development?"

The Boston girls argued "Yes," and thereby won the debate staged yesterday between Junior League members of Boston and New York at the League rooms on Boylston street.

It seemed strange that the Hub "leaguers" should have taken the affirmative stand on this interesting question. Doubtless some of their long since passed-away ancestors would have been a bit startled had they heard the arguments offered by Miss Ruth Taylor and Mrs. Thomas R. Morse (Eleanor Whitney) of the Boston team.

Mrs. Percy Morgan of New York; Mrs. Charles Greely Loring of Boston, and Mrs. George Baker of Cambridge gave the verdict. The Gotham debaters were Miss May Ogilvie and Mrs. Harrison Tweed.

CURFEW TO RING EVERY NIGHT IN WINTHROP

Thievery Leads Chief to Invoke Old Rule Shooing "Kids" Home at 9

Curfew will ring tonight at Winthrop.

Promptly at 9 o'clock—and for an indefinite number of nights to follow—the bell of the First Methodist Church, in the centre of the shore town, will peal out a warning to all children under sixteen to scurry homeward, if not accompanied by their elders.

Failure to do so will result in their visiting the police station, according to Chief of Police William A. McNeil, who has dug up an old curfew ordinance.

Continued petty thievery in the town, attributed to small boys, is responsible for the order, the chief says. To show no favoritism, the girls are included.

MRS. GOULD TO SEEK DIVORCE ANNULMENT

Not Informed About Case's Progress; to Charge Fraud, It Is Alleged

By BASIL D. WOON

Paris, April 3 (Universal Cable).—When George J. Gould, Jr., who is reported as being on his way to France, arrives in Paris, he will be confronted with a suit for the annulment of his divorce and the demand for another in her favor, which has been or will be instituted by his former wife, whom he divorced at Nice last year.

According to reliable information Mrs. Gould was astounded when she read the judgment for divorce, a copy of which she receives only a short time ago. She is said to have stated that she was not informed of the progress of the case and did not know that the divorce against her was supposed to be by mutual consent.

In reality, the divorce granted was entirely in favor of Gould, even to the extent of giving him the guardianship of the children, which right up to now he has not exercised.

Mrs. Gould, it is reported, intends to fight to the last ditch to overthrow the Nice judgment on the ground that it was fraudulently obtained. She will then petition for a divorce in her own favor.

MAN DEAD, WIFE IS DYING IN PACT

Richmond, Va., April 3.—Homer Cummins, prominent richmond business man, is dead and his wife, Nina Cummins, well known author, is in Memorial Hospital, not expected to live as the result of a suicide pact in their apartment, No. 105 North Third street.

When the police broke into their flat, Cummins was found dead with a bullet in his brain and Mrs. Cummins in a dying condition.

Barely able to whisper, the woman poured into the ears of the coroner a pitiful story. She said that for some time she and her husband had intended committing suicide. The pact had been in in search for several months.

Franklin "Fund" Only a Myth to Boost Book, He Says

Los Angeles, April 3.—The "Benjamin Franklin Fund," posthumous award of 1,000 pounds sterling to Charles P. Steinmetz, electrical wizard, was only a myth.

It was a scheme to provide publicity for a book on mental and spiritual healing by Dr. Pearson W. Banning of Los Angeles, according to a confession here by Dr. Banning, says the Los Angeles Times today.

Dr. Banning is quoted as saying he loaned the fund, distributed "awards" to Steinmetz and Dr. P. Gayell, Japanese scientist, and then granted 2,500 pounds sterling to himself for the scientific achievement reposited in his book, "In the spirit of a jest."

BATTLE FOUGHT IN STREETS OF BERLIN

Flag of Republic Trampled on as Monarchists Lead Cheers

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Berlin, April 3 (Universal Wireless)—A battle between Republican and Nationalistic-Monarchistic organizations, in which the flag of the republic was torn down and trampled under foot while the Monarchists flaunted the black, white and red banners to the wind amid the applause of great crowds, was staged here.

The battle ended the state ceremonies held by the German Government on the occasion of the arrival in Berlin of the body of a victim of the Ruhr struggle, who died in a French prison.

CALL CROOKER IN DAUGHERTY INQUIRY

Boston Attorney Summoned to Washington as Counsel of B. & M.

of the Senate committee to the New England Railroad disclosures involving Daugherty.

The Senate probers heard of this and promptly summoned Attorney Crooker. A subpoena was served on him yesterday by United States Deputy Marshal James Tighe. The call demanded his appearance in Washington "forthwith," but as Mr. Crooker had a prior law appointment in New Hampshire today he was excused until tomorrow, when he will testify. He plans to leave Boston tonight.

CROOKER CALLED TO PHONE.

Cross-examination of President Edward J. Pearson of the New Haven road and Attorney Buckman at the Codman hearing made public facts which interested the Daugherty investigating committee. Senator Wheeler held a telephone conversation with Attorney Crooker last night.

The dragging of the New Haven-Boston & Maine fight into the Washington inquiry is of great interest to local stockholders in both roads.

The names of Walter C. Baylies and Louis K. Liggett as New Haven candidates for the Boston & Maine board figure in today's disclosures.

A statement issued by Edward P. Brown of the Boston & Maine Railroad Stockholders' Association following disclosures at the Boston hearing, charges Daugherty with having attempted to overturn the legal vote taken at a Boston & Maine stockholders' meeting.

N. H. MEN DEFEATED.

"Notwithstanding protest by the Public Utilities Department of Massachusetts, Attorney-General Daugherty, early in 1922," says the Brown statement, "approved the request of the New Haven that the Federal decree of 1914 might be so modified as to permit the voting of its Boston & Maine stock then in the hands of a board of Federal trustees, for five nominees of the New Haven as candidates for Boston & Maine board of directors, and at Attorney-General Daugherty's suggestion the court so modified the decree.

"This modification submitted the will of the New Haven for the judgment and discretion of the board of trustees. It made a farce of the decree and a joke of the trustees. Under the so-called modification, the New Haven nominated five candidates for directors to be voted for at the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine in April, 1922.

"At the meeting the New Haven candidates were overwhelmingly defeated, but the New Haven refused to accept this decision of the stockholders and, as shown by the records of its board of directors, continued to attempt to secure representation on the Boston & Maine board through Attorney-General Daugherty.

BLAMES DAUGHERTY.

"The New Haven sought and obtained Attorney-General Daugherty's co-operation in an endeavor to mass places for New Haven representatives on the Boston & Maine board by forcing resignation of directors duly elected by stockholders. The record shows that Attorney-General Daugherty was expected to put enough pressure on our board to get New Haven representatives across. It is primarily to the credit of our management that it successfully resisted Daugherty's pressure.

Milwaukee, April 3 (AP).—Meagre additional returns from Tuesday's state-wide primary today showed little change in the Presidential delegate vote. Senator LaFollette's and Governor Smith's delegate candidates at large to the major political national conventions maintained their leads. C. Herbert Eldridge, forty-eight-year-old milk dealer, with whom she eloped, was accidentally shot and killed in a West Virginia mine ten days ago.

CITY FATHERS, NEW AND OLD, ARE SHOWN

They are like the radiotones for former mayors that adorn the walls of Mayor Curley's office, two floors below, only not quite so large in size, but larger in money expenditure by $1,300.

SAYS RUHR ARRESTS CAUSE REICH UNREST

Berlin, April 3 (A.P.)—Impatience over the German government's failure to obtain the release of the 1,500 "passive resistants" sentenced by the Franco-Belgian military courts during the occupation of the Ruhr and the Rhineland was freely voiced by Chancellor Marx in an interview today.

He pointed to what he considered the relation between resentment over what Germans view as a needless affront to the nation's sense of justice and the revival of pronounced nationalistic sentiment in the Reich, established legal rights.

Forbes, formerly head of the Veterans' Bureau, filed pleas in abatement against three Grand Jury indictments found against him as a result of an inquiry into the administration of the Veterans Bureau.

AROUND-WORLD AIRMEN JUMP TOMORROW

"Sitka by Saturday!" Slogan of Army Aviators on Next Lap

Seattle, April 3—Sitka, Alaska by Saturday afternoon is the goal of four United States Army aviators who are preparing to leave here at dawn tomorrow on the next lap on the "round the world voyage."

The tentative schedule, rearranged by Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the squadron, calls for arrival at Prince Rupert, B. C., 650 miles from here, tomorrow night. The fliers plan to ascend again early Saturday and clip off the 200-mile stretch to Sitka before dusk.

Final tests are to be given the cruisers Seattle, Chicago, New Orleans and Boston today. Pontoons have been substituted on all four for the landing gear with which they were equipped on the hops that brought them here from Santa Monica, Cal., the starting point. A new engine has been installed in the New Orleans.

Tonight Major Martin expects to receive weather reports from stations along the Pacific Coast route, and, unless adverse weather conditions make it indadvisable, the start will be made at daybreak tomorrow.

FAMILY IS LEFT DESTITUTE BY LYNN MAN

Sewing Machine Man Left March 22 With $100 of Employer's Money

A wife and three little children were left in such extreme destitution by John Oliphant, Lynn sewing machine salesman, that authorities of that city were obliged to furnish fuel and food today.

Oliphant disappeared on March 22 with $100 belonging to his employer.

John Oliphant Mrs. Oliphant

the Singer Sewing Machine Company of Salem.

Mrs. Eliza M. Oliphant, his wife, called at the office of the company two days later to warn if possible of his whereabouts. Lynn police were informed, but no trace of the missing man has been found.

Hubby Starved Her On Honeymoon, Wife Charges

Worcester, April 3.—Mrs. William M. Shaw of Grafton claims that her husband did not provide sufficient food for her on their honeymoon trip in July, 1908, in her suit for separate support against Shaw, who lives in Fiskeville. She charges cruel and abusive treatment. Mrs. Shaw asks the custody of a minor child.

FUNNY BOARDER PLAYS TRICK ON MRS. RILEY

Spatters Her Kitchen With Eggs Lifted From Greenberg Brothers' Store in E. Boston

Chances are that if you ask anybody in East Boston today: "Why does a hen cross the road?" they'll come back with the answer, "To get away from those comical boarders at Mrs. Riley's."

You couldn't blame the hen—not after what happened to twenty-nine of her live sisters and ten others whose spirits had passed on to the great heavenly barnyard, leaving their white and dark meat dressed and ready for market.

Thirty live hens, ten other hens, dressed for market and four dozen freshly laid eggs, disappeared early today from the poultry establishment of Greenberg Bros. at Nos. 11-13 Lewis street, East Boston. The absence of the stock, discovered when the front door was found to have been forced, puzzled the police.

Nothing was heard from the poultry and eggs—not even a cackle from the live biddies—until 6 o'clock, when the sun had just staggered up.

Then an investigating policeman happened into the boarding house run by Mrs. Mary E. Riley at No. 190 Sumner street, just around the corner from Greenberg Bros.

The search stopped here. A proud biddie hen strutted neatly across the floor of Mrs. Riley's kitchen while that kindly landlady gazed as it with horrified eyes.

But the hen was not [illegible] that she gazed at with horrified eyes. Large spatters of yellow were spread lavishly over the walls. The yellow was sticky. It looked suspiciously like the yoke of an egg.

Feathers were strewn all over the kitchen. The floor was carpeted with them. The policeman looked at Mrs. Riley and Mrs. Riley looked at the policeman. Her lips came together in a thin line and her eyes narrowed.

"It's them comical boarders," she said.

The funny thing about it is that the police don't think it funny at all and are curious to find out just which boarder, or boarders, if any adopted the hens and eggs.

WOMEN START CITY CLEANUP CAMPAIGN

Municipal League Asks Housewives for Garbage Collection Data

The Women's Municipal League, which forced many market owners to clean their shops by warning women not to buy in unclean places, are circulating thousands of cards in a campaign to clean up the alleys, backyards and streets of the city. The women intend to secure a proper and regular collection of ashes and garbage.

Questions as to service given by the collectors will be answered by housewives and returned to the Women's Municipal League in the form of a report.

When the League have gained accurate knowledge of the facts they will ask for a conference with city officials to determine what should be done.

Women who show they are interested in the campaign will be given a card to hang in their windows. The card will read:

WOMEN'S MUNICIPAL LEAGUE.
Telephone Complaints to Back Bay 196.

I mean to keep the streets clean for the children.

I provide that my barrels shall divide my ashes and garbage.

I try not to let the papers fly that's so untidy.

MOTHER FINDS HER SON AFTER 37-YEAR HUNT

Left Him in Boston Home When He Was an Infant, Then Wants Him Back

Taunton, April 3.—A little woman, nervously fumbling a slip of paper, compared an address with a notation in the slip and, trembling, mounted the steps.

A tall man, weighing over 200 pounds, opened the door and looked down at her. "What can I do for you?" he asked.

"Do you know where you were born?" the little woman asked.

"Why-er, no," he stammered, surprised at the strange question.

"I know," cried the woman. "I am your mother."

LOVE SEARCH ENDS.

She clasped him to her arms and sobbed, for a search covering thirty-seven years, had ended and the six-teen-months-old son she had left with attendants in a little wanderers' home at Boston, thirty-seven years ago, was found again.

The woman was Mrs. John Asbell of Manchaug, in Worcester County. The man, now more than thirty-eight years old, believed himself, since he was old enough to reason, to be Manton Chambers.

"Chambers" is a World War veteran, now a field agent and correspondent for a theatrical publication. He is married.

Thirty-seven years ago his mother, then Mrs. Eliza Emma Brown, a widow, penniless and with four children, found she could not provide for them.

FORCED TO GIVE HIM UP.

Broken-hearted, she left the boy "Bertie," in one Boston home and the three baby girls in another home. Later she married again and went back for her children. She found the girls easily, but the boy had been adopted by a family that had taken him away, leaving no address.

The search by the mother began. Clew after clew was followed, but all proved false. Yet she did not give up, even after thirty-seven years.

A few days ago she received a letter containing information that Bertie was adopted in 1888 by a family named Chambers. She followed this clew and it brought her to Taunton. It was the right one and the reunion followed.

Masher Scorned, Slaps Girl, Gets 3 Months

New Bedford, April 3.—For slapping the face of Miss Penelope Shatteckis when she refused to take a stroll with him, Antone Mayos, No. 32 Water street, Fairhaven, will spend the next three months in the House of Correction. She told the court that Mayos arrested her on the street in Fairhaven.

2 GIRLS RUSH BACK INTO FIRE AND DIE

Syracuse, N. Y., April 3.—Stampeded back into the burning colony house from which they had been led among a score of inmates, two State wards from the Home School for Mental Defectives, died in a midnight fire at Vocation Station.

Bodies were found in the ruins at daylight when check of the girls sheltered in farmhouses showed two missing, identified as Violet Hughes, nineteen, and Alice Bunten, twenty-one.

BAILEY NAMED IN CASTLEMAN'S PLACE

Dr. Karl R. Bailey, assistant director and bacteriologist of the laboratory of the health department at City Hall, has been appointed deputy health commissioner, in charge of the laboratory division, at $3,500 a year, by Mayor Curley.

Dr. Bailey takes the place of Dr. Philip Castleman, who was killed by an automobile.

You don't have to be a mechanic to select a used car any more. Let the Boston American be your mechanic. Don't pick blindly.

REMINGTON GUN MAKER DEAD AT 96

Ilion, N. Y., April 3.—Elisha Remington, oldest resident of Ilion and lone survivor of the firm of E. Remington & Sons, manufacturers of the Remington gun, is dead. He was in his ninety-sixth year.

Upon attaining his majority in 1849 he entered the employ of his father and in 1856 the firm was established. Adoption of the Remington gun by the United States government during the Civil War and by foreign governments brought prosperity to the company and in 1879 profits were so great a dividend of $2,000,000 was declared.

Investments in religious and reform papers proved costly, however, and changed conditions in business ways made the fortune so that in 1886 the firm assigned the business to creditors.

KAYO'S FATHER SEES FILM AT THE PARK

McGurk Is Taken Back 300 Years, and He Is Sorry She Is Not on the Trip

By J. W. M'GURK.

Nothing much was doing yesterday afternoon in the dazzling island of Patootie.

Kayo Tortora, its sparkling queen, was away.

I was wishing Kayo would come back when the Boss tucked his head into the dig-out and murmured that he'd like me to run up to the Park Theatre and see "Under the Red Robe."

GOOD FOR ANY MIND.

"It'll do you good," he consoled me, evidently noting my confused state of mind.

With mixed thoughts dashing through my head, I squeezed my way into the Park Theatre, expecting I'd never be able to keep my mind on the screen.

And now I want to say that the Boss was right. I hadn't been five minutes watching the screen before I forgot the world of today—and there I was back 300 years, following the fascinating tale of intrigue—that nearly upset the throne of Louis XII. of France. "Under the Red Robe." I quickly learned, was the symbolization of the power and influence of the great Cardinal Richelieu, who saved the throne of Louis from his enemies.

KAYO MISSED A LOT.

Kayo would have enjoyed losing herself for two hours or so in this amazing screen tale.

They say it set the promoters back $1,000,000—and even more—to put this seventeenth century panoramic picture on. As the stupendous scenes depicting the life of those days of knights and forest robbers were unfolded—huge crowds, wonderful settings, all of them experienced the sensation of being myself for not living then.

I was carried away with the feathered hats worn by the king's guards and the rest of the fighting men folk. I wondered how we ever came to the derby after hats like that. I'm going to get one for Kayo.

LIKED LOVE SCENE.

One of the scenes I liked was when the hero, Gil de Berault, "the Black Death," they called him, played by John Chester Thomas, knelt before Renee de Chateaufort, played by Alma Rubens, and plighted his love for her.

Although out on an errand for the Cardinal to fetch Renee's supposedly renegade brother back to Paris to be shot at sunrise, Gil managed things so that he won Renee and exposed the arch plotter of the day, the brother of the King.

It's worth while going to see "Under the Red Robe," to see how they did things 300 years ago.

SWIG ASKS STAY OF $27,000 JUDGMENT

In a bill in equity filed in the U. S. District Court, Simon Swig asks that the Tremont Trust Company be enjoined from executing a judgment of $27,672 until the question of his discharge in bankruptcy is settled.

Swig states that this judgment was returned against him, having to do with a promissory note, he being a co-maker. He declares that this judgment is founded on a claim which would be barred by a discharge in bankruptcy.

He asks the court to issue a restraining order until the question of his discharge in bankruptcy is settled. The case will be heard April 14.

KAYO TO WED KEYNES, SAY FRIENDS

Russian Dancer Reported Engaged to English Economics Expert

By HAYDEN TALBOT

London, April 3 (Universal Wireless).—From friends of Lydia Loupokova, who were stunned by the news that she seeks to nullify her marriage to Randolfo Barrocchi, Universal Service received information that her suit is preliminary to marrying again.

They say it set the promoters back $1,000,000—and even more—to put this seventeenth century panoramic picture on. As the stupendous scenes depicting the life of those days of knights and forest robbers were unfolded—huge crowds, wonderful settings, all of them experienced the sensation of being myself for not living then.

John Maynard Keynes, English economist, is said to be the man, although neither Loupokova at the Coliseum where she is appearing, nor Keynes at his home in London, would consent to confirm the report.

It is stated by one of Loupokova's confidants, however, that the marriage will take place immediately the nullity suit is decided—the principal evidence of the truth of the report being the fact that the Russian Danseuse, will make no further stage appearances for the remainder of the year.

Keynes is a rich man and Loupokova has ample means of her own.

"The romance began platonically several years ago," the informant of Universal Service said.

"The date of Loupokova's discovery that Barrocchi married her in America six months before his divorce became final is not known, but her lawyers have assured her it will not make any difference. There is little likelihood that Barrocchi will contest the suit."

10,000 PROTEST ISLE OF PINES TREATY

Washington, April 3.—Ratification of the treaty confirming Cuban sovereignty to the Isle of Pines would be a blot on American history, President Coolidge was told in a petition laid before him by T. J. Keenan, Pittsburgh; J. D. Potts, New York, and Edward Yanish, St. Paul, representing American property owners on the island. The petition recited that 10,000 American citizens had bought land and now owned more than 90 per cent. of the island.

"The matter of getting the above sum from the State is holding up many needed improvements at the air port, which will make landing there safe for aviators," he said.

Hazel Dawn Heads Committee Which Will Seek Solution of Problem

New York, April 3.—Five thousand chorus girls out of jobs, all hungry, most of them beautiful and many constitutionally thirsty, will abandon their limousines early this season and throng Broadway singly, doubly and in pulchritudinous groups.

Chorus girls will be more plentiful in New York than beans in Boston on Saturday night.

3,500 HAVE ARRIVED.

The advance guard has arrived—3,500 of them. From the Pacific Coast outward to the Southland border and the Great Lakes Theatrical Employment Agencies have had to bar their doors against the rush for work that doesn't exist.

But the matter has been taken up seriously and no less celebrity than Hazel Dawn of "The Pink Lady" fame said that she will form a committee to devise a means to take care of any girls out of jobs who become stranded in New York.

PLAN MASS MEETING.

A mass meeting is to be held in the most capacious hall available in the city, where action will be taken.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President, will be asked by Miss Dawn to head a list of patronesses, and Mrs. Frank W. Vanderlip, Mrs. Belmont, and other society leaders will be requested to help make up the personnel of the list.

AMUNDSEN AND MUSSOLINI CONFER

Rome, April 3. — Captain Roald Amundsen and his American pilot, Lieutenant Davison, arrived here from Pisa to confer with Premier Mussolini today. They have just inspected the Marinia Di Pisa, the aluminum seaplane being constructed by Italians, and with which they hope to cross the North Pole next July. An Italian naval officer will accompany them.

Amundsen plans a sixteen-hour airway from Europe to America via Alaska. The plane has two motors with 600 horse power and will be capable of resisting low temperatures.

JUDGE LOOMIS' SON IS BURNED AT BLAZE

A man was burned, four firemen were overcome by smoke, and a small factory was destroyed in a $5,000 blaze near the residence of Judge Elihu G. Loomis, at the junction of Great road and Brookside road, Bedford.

The fire started probably from spontaneous combustion among some bales of wadding.

The factory was owned by Ralph Loomis, son of Judge Loomis. Ralph was burned about the face assisting the firemen.

Men working in the factory were forced to flee.

PRIVATE CAR OF R. R. PRESIDENT IS RAIDED

Large Stock of Wines and Whiskey Seized; Steward Arrested

New York, April 3.—Prohibition agents raided the private car of George De Boutillier, president of the Long Island Railroad Company, and assert they found champagne, Scotch whiskey, assorted wines and beer. The raid was made in the Pennsylvania railroad terminal.

With the liquor, the raiders seized Charles Jones, a Negro steward, charged with illegally possessing liquor.

Pennsylvania officials said they didn't know anything about the raid. Even Station Master Egan professed to be ignorant of the goings on in President Boutillier's car. No one at Boutillier's home in Garden City knew about the liquors.

According to Prohibition Agents John F. Letten and Robert Orrens, the cache included ten cases of champagne, three cases of Old Snuggler, one case of Sandy MacDonald, seven bottles of Peter Dawson Scotch whiskies, two bottles of Vermouth, two bottles of beer, one bottle of creme de menthe and one bottle of Canadian whiskey.

WEAK SOS CALL BY SHIP HINTS AT TRAGEDY

Radio Picks Up Distress Signal From Ship Off Shore, Then All Is Silent

A faint S. O. S. call from an unidentified steamship somewhere off the Massachusetts coast stilled all radio broadcasting for twenty minutes, while the most powerful receiving sets along the coast tried in vain to learn the name and position of the ship.

Thousands of radio fans in Boston and vicinity visioned a grim tragedy of the sea when naval radio operators suddenly ordered the air cleared as the barely audible call for help was picked up.

Boston Navy Yard operators tried every device to get in touch with the vessels, as did the Naval Communications Bureau in New York. The one ghost-like appeal was the only word from the vessel, however.

The navy communications officials in New York announced later that, from their calculations, the message was sent from a point off Chatham, but at the Boston navy yard the operators were of the opinion that the vessel was about 1,400 miles at sea, probably off the Canad an coast.

When all efforts to establish communication with the unknown vessel failed, the broadcasting stations were permitted to resume their programs.

During the evening hundreds of telephone messages were received at Station WNAC and the Boston Navy Yard, asking if any news had been heard from the vessel.

SEE LAYS EVILS OF PRESENT TO SUFFRAGE

Declares Vote Has Created Race of Brazen, Painted Women Drinkers

New York, April 3.—Alonzo B. See, wealthy Brooklyn elevator manufacturer, who two years ago started a national controversy by declaring that all women's colleges should be burned down, sounded the tocsin in her dear name in a statement in which he attributed most of the moral laxity of the present day to the fact that women has the vote.

To the door of equal suffrage he paid modern feminine flaunting of prohibition, rouge and lipstick pervasion and the abandonment of corsets, and he distributed with an impartial equability a profound pity for mothers for the present day children they are raising, and for the raising generation for the mothers it possesses.

Not until man again becomes intelligent, and gently deprives women of the vote, he contended, can such evils be removed and the relations of the sexes be restored to old-fashioned normalcy.

The statement of Mr. See, which is expected to stir up even more heated discussion than his views against feminine higher education, like extent that came after they was directed to the Lucy Stone were given the vote.

Legion Warns Against Peace Propaganda Among Women

Indianapolis, April 3.—Extreme pacifism extended to movements among women and children of America is being used as a tool of Bolshevism and radicalism, Garland W. Powell, director of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, declared today.

Mr. Powell warned Legionnaires against a national anti-war campaign directed by the Women's Peace Society, enrolling young and old by stealing pledges "not to aid directly the United States government in event of any war."

Lesaue, which wants women to keep their maiden names after marriage.

It reads, in part, as follows:

"Our nation has a new nuisance to contend with—the nuisance of women's political clubs. These are managed by idle women. Satan still finds mischief for idle hands to do.

"Once the women contended they could save the world could they but get the vote. Well, they got it. And what has happened?

"Never was there so much rum drinking among the young as there has been since the women have had the vote. Never did women walk the streets with the smugger and brazen faces they have since they got it. Never did women use paint, powder and the lipstick to the extent they do now. Never were cocktail drinking and cigarette smoking as rife among women.

"And never did women take off their corsets previous to dancing to the

KIDDIE ASKS AMERICAN TO FIND COLLIE

Little Miss Kelly of Charlestown Mourns Loss of 'Boy'

Six-year-old Florence Kelly, of No. 42 Sullivan street, Charlestown, appeals to other members of the great big family of Boston American readers to help her find her lovely collie, which has strayed from home.

The name of the shepherd-dog is "Boy."

Little Florence, for a number of days emulated Little Bo Peep, who knew she left her sheep and didn't know where to find them, as Bo Peep colored so vividly, let them alone and they came home wagging their tails behind them.

But the Bo Peep treatment failed to bring relief. "Boy" still is missing.

The news came to this newspaper in the form of photographs and the following letter:

Please will anyone who has seen or is caring for this dog kindly notify him to Miss Florence Kelly, No. 42 Sullivan street, Charlestown. He answers to the name of "Boy." He was Florence's birthday present. She is six years old.

The person who brings "Boy" home will receive a reward, besides making a little girl very happy.

Not a word about Florence, except as you read between the lines that she believes firmly in truth, justice, Santa Claus and being kind to dumb animals, but it is safe to say that she is one of the finest and dearest and sweetest little girls in all Boston, whose little girls are famous for their goodness the wide world over.

Come, "Boy!"

TARAMASCHI AND BAILEY TO SETTLE OLD FEUD TONIGHT

GRAPPLERS IN FINISH BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

Angelo Taramanschi, great Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, will meet one of the hardest tests of his career when he clashes with Farmer Bailey of Brattleboro in a finish bout, best two out of three falls, at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House tonight.

There is tremendous interest in this fussle. This is due to the rough battle Taramaschi and Bailey recently put up. After seventeen minutes of grappling, the rivals began swapping blows. Taramaschi got the worst of the exchange. The referee was finally obliged to order both men from the ring.

When Taramaschi and Bailey signed for tonight's contest, it was agreed that the referee would not interfere, regardless of how rough the match might become.

Taramaschi recently showed a world of class in his winning bout with Gregg Karakonstas, Greek champion. The Italian has improved to a point where he would have many hookers if he were to collide with Stanley Stasiak or Strangler Lewis.

MISS CORA LIVINGSTON IS ALSO ON THE CARD.

Miss Cora Livingston, lady wrestling champion of the world, is also on tonight's card. She is billed to meet Miss Belle La Mar. When these fair performers met recently, each scored a fall. As tonight's contest will be best two falls out of three to a finish, Miss Livingston will have to display all of her ability to retain her world's championship.

Stanley Stasiak, mighty Polish wrestler and one of the headliners whom Strangler Lewis won't meet, is also due to do his stuff tonight. He will wrestle with Count Nikolas Zarynoff, the Russian Nobleman, in a one fall match. The Count is a new comer to the mat game here and save he will not the well-known skidder Stasiak.

The opening bout will be between John Kilonis the rugged Greek, and Savage Tooles another Greek star. This frolic should involve action.

Our selections are Taramaschi and Stasiak. The Kilonis-Tooles affair is a toss-up while we don't know enough about the gracious lady wrestlers to even attempt to pick a winner. We once tried to pick the winner of a girls' fancy swimming contest and almost got mobbed when we made known our selection.

There will be an open amateur boxing tournament at the Pioneer A. A. of Lynn on a week from to-morrow night. There will be tussles in the open classes at 112, 115 and 135 pounds. The 118 and 147 pound classes will be restricted to novices. Entries close next Wednesday with Louis Penny, No. 101 Church street, Lynn.

HAMBONE READY FOR LARSEN BOUT

At the office of the Boxing Commission yesterday afternoon, Hambone Kelly of South Boston and Wolf Larsen were matched to meet at the Commercial A. C. April 11.

This match originally was scheduled to take place several weeks ago at the Commercial Club, but Kelly was forced to withdraw because of shoulder trouble.

Then Larsen was knocked out by bloodthirsty and he has been out of the running for several weeks as a result.

All the parties concerned met at the office of the Boxing Commission yesterday afternoon to discuss the matter of weights and other details, and the commissioners approved the match if the men would weigh 160 to 174 pounds.

GLYNN READY TO MEET McMANUS

"I see where Terry McManus wants to box Dinnie Glynn to settle a controversy as to which is the better of the Roxbury lightweights. It is the first that Glynn or myself have heard about McManus being anxious for the match," said Sammy Lewis, Glynn's manager.

Dinnie Glynn

"Dinnie and Terry have been knocking this in the same section, and are the best of friends, and boxing other lightweights, but he is by no means ducking McManus, and if there is a demand for the match, and a worthwhile offer is made, the match can be had."

Meanwhile Glynn is getting plenty of work. He had Larry Harrison on the floor, when, his misunderstanding of the referee's actions caused him to foul his opponent. He is matched to meet Harry Foley for the Fannell club on Friday, or whenever they stage their next show.

OFFERS TO TRAIN ALL TRACKMEN

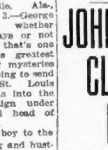
New York, April 3.—An invitation to all candidates for the American Olympic track and field team to come to Philadelphia and train under his wing was issued today by Dr. Joseph Raycroft, coach of the Olympic Committee by Lawson Robertson, Pennsylvania mentor, and head track coach of the American team.

A similar invitation was issued by Tom Keane, Syracuse coach, to cross-country and middle-distance men, to train in the Orange stadium and over the Syracuse hill and dale courses.

Four of America's sprinting hopes, Loren Murchison, Louis Clarke, Alfred Leconey and Harold (Boots) Lever, are working out already under Robertson's eye at Philadelphia.

ST. LOUIS SET FOR FLAG FIGHT

By NICK FLATLEY



George Sisler, steam.

Mobile, Ala., April 3.—George Sisler, whether he plays or not —and that's one of the greatest Spring mysteries —is going to send his St. Louis Browns into the campaign under a full head of steam.

Sisler, from last boy to the diest veteran, are pulling and hustling for George, and just that spirit will do a whole lot for the real caseall club.

Sisler, greatest of all hitters perhaps, almost made champions of the Browns on a couple of occasions. He wielded his war club with sufficient vigor to haul the boys up into some cuts of the World Series cash. And the boys remember it.

Morale means a lot, and the Browns have plenty this Spring, plus a very good looking ball club. Sisler probably will start the season at first base.

He has been playing in the practice games, and has been hitting the ball. His improvement has been steady and sure. He seems physically and mentally ready to play.

The doctors say Sisler's eyes are practically restored to normal. One eye was turned badly, but has eased back into shape.

Kenneth Williams

With Sisler on first, the Browns can come right back with the team that chased the Yankees down to the wire in 1922 and lost by half a game. The club is set all the way through, and with a good break at the barrier, can raise a whole lot of commotion.

* * *

McManus now rates with the great second baseman, and Gerber is a superlative shortstop. The team had trouble around third a year ago, but in this campaign, Ellerbee, who was very good in 1922, will be on the job.

Greb Is Now After McTigue

New York, April 3.—Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, today declared himself in the running for Mike McTigue's Eight-heavy weight title and added that he would issue a challenge immediately. Greb formerly held the American light-heavyweight but was deprived of the title by Gene Tunney.

Harry Greb, championship.

JACK DELANEY IS MIGHTY SOCKER

Hardly had the boxing world stopped talking about the sudden and unexpected knockout of Paul Berlenbach, wonder puncher of New York, by Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, sensation of the middleweight ranks, than both knockout artists appear back on the sport pages.

Paul Berlenbach

Memories of the Delaney-Berlenbach battle are brought back when news flashes contain the information that Berlenbach had knocked out Al Krohn of Arkon, Ohio, and that Jack Delaney had signed to box George Robinson, classy negro battler of Cambridge, for the Suffolk A. A., at Mechanics Building, Boston, April 10.

Jack Delaney is a Holyoke protege, whose Christian name is Odtea Chap De Laine, and is of French extraction. He started boxing in Holyoke under the direction of Al Jennings, and captured twenty of his first thirty fights by knockouts.

About six years ago Delaney moved to Bridgeport, Conn., where he proceeded to startle the boxing world by winning over the best middleweights. Since that time Delaney has three times defeated Louis Bogash, won from Augie Ratner and Tommy Loughran and stopped the winning streak of Berlenbach.

Delaney knocked out Leo Leonard of Allentown, Pa., at Bridgeport, Conn., on Monday night, and will make his first appearance against a boxer of national reputation on next Thursday night when he meets George Robinson for the Suffolk A. A. at Mechanics Building.

JOHNNY BUFF TO CLASH WITH FILIPINO

Young Dencio, latest flyweight sensation from the Philippines, will have Johnny Buff, former world's bantamweight champion, as opponent in the feature bout at the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building on next Tuesday night.

There is great interest in the appearance of Dencio. He is one of the few flyweights who have been dodged by Pancho Villa. This may be due to that fact that Dencio knocked out Flores, Villa's stablemate, in the nineteenth round of a tussle in the Philippines.

Johnny Buff

Frank Dane, a Boston man and formerly a boxing promoter in this city is managing Dencio.

Buff is a ring veteran who always gives satisfaction. Naturally the fans are anxious to see the former champion test Dencio.

Bobby Ruttenberg of New York and Charley Baxter of Pawtucket, two more flyweights, will mingle in the semi-final of ten rounds.

There will also be two eights between bantams. Marty Cordis of Lynn will oppose Benny Nelson of Lowell, while Young Croboss of Peabody will have the clever Jack Williams of Chicago as an opponent.

BENTON AND McNAMARA HELP SCALP DODGERS

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 3.—Rube Marquard, who was supposed to win a couple more Spring games for the Braves before the season opened, is not likely to do that little thing. He has a lame back and will be nursed tenderly along so that his portside ammunition will be ready for the Spring firing line.

The Rube, who has never looked better than he did all this Spring, pulled a muscle in his somewhat broad back while knocking out fungoes. It's an inconsiderable injury, but one of the kind that only rest will cure. The venerable southpaw is all strapped up with tape and things at present and will take life very easily for a week or so.

Then he will be worked out slowly so that he will be in pitching for the opening ceremonies. The Rube, who spent the Winter here, will not be bothered by the vacation. He's always in trim and has one of those arms that can be cut loose just as well after a whole Winter's rest as it can be in the middle of the well-known Summer.

The loss of the southpaw will not be felt greatly on next week's excursion to the blizzard belt. The young fellows are in pretty good shape now, and getting better as the days roll by.

Tim McNamara and Larry Benton did some very good pitching against the Dodgers, although the pair showed lack of active competition. Both were fast and had a lot on the ball, but their control was a bit off. That's only natural when flingers get a bit off plumb watching real games from the bench.

McNamara, who was last year's big disappointment, seems to us to be back on the road to glory once more. He has the jump on his fast ball that was missing last Summer, and his confidence has returned with the old zip.

Tim can put as many wrinkles on a baseball as any young man that ever stepped out of college. And he has plenty of courage. He did a lot of relief work in the cold Spring days of '22, and that may have caused his downfall. He hasn't been rushed a bit this Spring.

Young Benton showed quite a few good games last year, and he has collected a lot of knowledge about the gentle box art.

His arm was weak and sore when his team first worked out here, so he didn't get into much real tussling. He's right now, and pulled himself out of several tough holes against those Robins by sticking the ball over when he really had to.

Jack Kelliher.

Both those young men were admirably supported by Messrs. Tierney and Bancroft, who seem to be really fine combination around second as time trickles along. They engineered two very rapid double plays in times of stress, and thereby really defeated the Dodgers, 4 to 3. The victory was the fourth straight the Braves have collected on their home park here.

Jack Kelliher was parked on third and looked quite natural there. He had nothing very difficult to do in the field, but he did handle everything that came his way as smoothly as could be wished.

"Stuffy" McInnis

And he pegged the ball around with plenty of speed. His arm, which was bad in the early days is now one of the best infield guns on the squad.

Bill Cunningham

Jack will be kept in there for his hitting as much as anything else. He made one blow in three trips, but his 3-0 came in the pinch, which is the regular place for blows. It was a single, and that rescued Casey Stengel, who had tripled mightily and it tied up the game.

Bill Cunningham, who doesn't hit in the best of luck was mostly responsible for the rest of the Braves scores as he inserted a double into the fifth inning that rescued the Braves who had been passed. This William himself came home on a Stuffy McInnis smack.

Stuffy, whose props are right and gave the gathering a treat by making a couple of fielding miscues and back hand glove pickups, one comin at the end of a double play in the eighth, and staving off the tieing run.

TEX RICKARD AND MULLINS PLAN WILLS RING CAMPAIGN

PANTHER IN LINE FOR TITLE GO

Tex Rickard and Paddy Mullins have got their heads together to discuss details of the former's plan to handle the Summer campaign of Harry Wills and [illegible] the eventual [illegible] champion.

Paddy Mullins

Wills is regarded [illegible] under the Rickard banner for [illegible] one of the opponents [illegible] will select for him when [illegible] beating the big colored boy.

However, the exact number of bouts has not been determined [illegible] cannot be until Rickard [illegible] Fernino Spalla, European [illegible] weight, and Quintin Romero Rojas shape up.

Neither of the imported fighters are believed to have a chance with Wills and certainly cannot be thrown in the ring with him until they are measured up to American standards.

Even if Spalla and Rojas should not fan the fans [illegible] with customers for Wills and an untried opponent.

Firpo went a draw until after he had whipped Jack McAuliffe in the Milk Fund Show and Jess Willard at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Just who will be [illegible] to test the powers of a [illegible] Rickard is working on now.

Floyd Johnson and Fred Fulton [illegible] are [illegible] but there is no room [illegible] Tom Gibbons. Neither [illegible] presents of [illegible] and Romero [illegible] hooking up for the privilege of boxing Wills.

TWO FOREIGN STARS DUE HERE TOMORROW.

Romero-Rojas is due in New York tomorrow on the Teno which sailed from Valparaiso about two weeks ago.

He is accompanied by [illegible] Chilean [illegible] Club.

Rickard intends to get a match with the Chilean as soon as possible so [illegible] his way back [illegible] up with Wills early in June if he makes good in the meantime while Tex Rickard.

Plans for Spalla are not so definite. The Italian isn't as big as Wills or Romero Rojas, but he stepped fourteen rounds with Firpo and is trading heavily on that reputation.

It was [illegible] planned by Rickard and [illegible] Spalla and Gene Tunney together, but if Gene should win it would merely eliminate a possible opponent for Wills.

Even though it is impossible for Rickard to make his proposition to Wills definite until Firpo jumps one way or the other.

Wills and Mullins naturally prefer a Firpo match with a Dempsey guarantee for the winner. That would give Wills two big shots if he could beat Firpo.

WILLS, COLORED STAR, WONDER OF RING

The Black Panther going through his daily training stunts and his long left which he says will win the world's title if Dempsey will get up for a bout.

CURLEY TO BOWL FIRST BALL IN MATCH

Mayor James M. Curley will bowl the first ball, which marks the formal opening of the [illegible] championship [illegible] at the Arena Monday night and [illegible] through Patriot's Day. Rex H. Although the exact [illegible] are undecided as to [illegible] the Arena [illegible] Mayor Curley [illegible] Both classes there will be approximately 250 doubles or two-man teams and 400 singles or individuals entered in the tournament.

Prizes will be [illegible] to and from time to time to suit the convenience of out-of-town bowlers.

Manager Fohl is well pleased with the work of his reserves.

Danny Clarke, former Southern leaguer, and at one time on the Detroit payroll, was sent to third in place of McMillan in the sixth inning in the final game with Fort Worth. In addition to his fielding, he started a batting rally in the seventh that resulted in three runs crossing the plate.

Next in turn came Phil Todt, who has all the appearances of filling in about first base some day. Todt, batting for Fergusen in the seventh, tripled down the right field foul line, scoring Steve O'Neill, who had previously doubled.

It's hardly fair to call Ike Boone a utility man since he has been named by Manager Fohl as a regular right fielder, yet his station is not any too certain, and for that reason we include him with the new faces.

Ike, by the way, turned in the best catch seen on the local field and incidentally the best of the exhibition series. In grabbing a low banging liner from the bat of Palmer in the seventh that seemed labeled for a sure single, he covered himself with glory and made his friendship with Manager Fohl more binding.

The big fellow grasped the hard hit ball, turn a somersault twice and came up with the sphere safely clutched in his gloved hand.

All in all, the Red Sox reserve strength showed up exceptionally well. This has been the case in all the exhibition games played to date. Though Phil Todt has yet to [illegible] innings he is considered [illegible] the young stars seeking [illegible] on the Red Sox squad.

Ralph McMillan drove a [illegible] through the box that sent old Jack Ryan, Fort Worth pitcher, to the showers and may cut short his minor league career. The ball traveling at a terrific clip hit Ryan on the elbow of his pitching arm and caused his hurried exit from the park to the hospital.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

By Mark Sullivan

A Mother Who Typified the Heroic Women of Her Day

IN Dedham there today stands a house in which a [illegible] heroine of the Revolution lived. She had had and [illegible] She did not [illegible] for [illegible] country. It [illegible] a [illegible] against [illegible] land its independence.

For Mrs. Mary Dexter, who lived [illegible] her husband and [illegible] the first [illegible] not only [illegible] to respond at once but with her own hands [illegible] the kindling on her stove [illegible] him depart to join the colors.

Her daughter was dedicated to the risk of her young brother going to war, [illegible] for [illegible] her mother [illegible] though [illegible] [illegible] to delay.

The war [illegible] and [illegible] You [illegible] Kit [illegible] be [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] tomorrow night hundreds, I hope thousands will be on their way to join the Continental forces. Some who have traveled far will need refreshment and rest, and I, with Molly, must feed as many as we can.

Immediately this special [illegible] an [illegible] her work. There was much [illegible] in the household that does not [illegible] one of the best in the colony.

So all night Mrs. Draper, her daughter and servant worked [illegible] and [illegible] of food. In the morning, on the roadside Mrs. Draper [illegible] shelves [illegible] her [illegible] loaves of bread and cheese were placed. Cider in buckets was placed there.

Soon the weary troops after the night's march, began to file by the farm. Their [illegible] and hunger were relieved by the food which Mrs. Draper had prepared for them. All day she was [illegible] for the [illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] man and [illegible] the women who [illegible] their needs as [illegible] arose.

[illegible] the news, after the Battle of [illegible] Hill, that there was a [illegible] of ammunition. Although Mrs. Draper loved every bit of the [illegible] [illegible] which was the pride of her home, she [illegible] it and made bullets, with [illegible] hands in the [illegible] [illegible] her husband [illegible] fashioned before [illegible].

Not [illegible] she do this but she [illegible] her daughter [illegible] uniform [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] would not [illegible] which they could [illegible] their [illegible]. The store of shot was [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the pot [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] flannel [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] apart [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] for the soldiers.

Although Mary Draper was not even [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in what [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of many [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] notion of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rifles [illegible] [illegible] for the [illegible] onies the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] world as [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nation.

MAKE YOUR OWN WAVE TRAPS AT HOME

Tune Out Nearby Stations So You Can Pick Up DX Stations

The elimination of interference from local broadcasting stations is often a problem of the radio listener today. The location of a broadcasting station near the receiver causes oscillation to be set up in the form of ripples. It is doubtful that any single, two or three circuit tuner or set, when used in certain locations could be so designed as to overcome such conditions.

The most effective method of dealing with this problem is the use of a properly designed wave trap.

Fig. 1

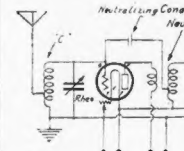

Fig. 2

The type shown in figure one will give a degree of satisfaction, but is not at all efficient over the entire broadcast range, and it also causes an appreciable decrease in signals at certain frequencies.

The trap illustrated in figure two is quite efficient and results in only a very small loss in signal strength.

Inductance L1 should be about eight turns of No. 14 or 18 wire on a three-inch cylinder, rather closely coupled to L2, which should consist of from forty-two to fifty turns of No. 22 or 24 wire on the same tube.

The better way of winding these inductances is as follows. On a hard rubber or bakelite tube three inches in diameter, wind fifty turns of No. 22 double cotton covered wire. After winding, leaving the two ends exposed, wrap this with two layers of empire cloth, or good insulating varnished cambric. Fasten the end securely with varnish. On this, over the centre of the first winding, wind eight turns of No. 14 or 18 insulated wire. Fasten both ends.

Across the fifty turn coil, place a .001 microfarad or .0005 microfarad variable condenser.

The antenna lead is fastened to one side of the eight turn coil winding, the other end running to the set.

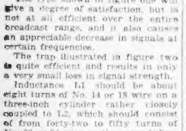

Fig. 3

A more efficient way of connecting the coils is shown in figure three. The only difference is that the wave trap is in parallel with your primary inductance in your set instead of in series.

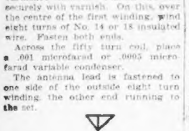

Fig. 4

A still more efficient construction would be—shown in figure four—to tape the inductance coil at the seventh and last turn and carry these taps to posts. Fasten the antenna to a movable lever so that desired variation in number of turns can be made. This then is used in the same position as in figure three.

The same effect can be more easily and quickly accomplished by using some one of the types of inexpensive inductometers, such as spider web coils on the fifty turn coil and winding the eight turn coil if so small a winding cannot be purchased. These should be mounted so that the coupling between the eight and fifty turn coil can be varied. This will accomplish the same effect as the tapped coil in figure four.

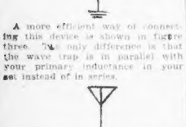

Fig. 5

The ribbon would be the winding on the fifty turn coil on a rotor and the eight-turn coil on a tube, assembling them so as to form a variometer.

The forms shown in figure four and figure five are the most efficient of all, and while adding two additional controls to your equipment the results are worth the bother.

PRACTICAL TWO-TUBE NEUTRODYNE SET

HOOKUP OF RECEIVER

An excellent two-tube set may be constructed on the neutrodyne. While not equal either in volume or range to the five tube set, it will, nevertheless give remarkable results.

SENSITIVE TWO-TUBE SET OF NEUTRODYNE

Small Set Built on Neutrodyne Principle Gives Surprising Results

Many radio fans are under the impression that receivers of more than five bulbs cannot be used in the neutrodyne, but this is not so. A two-tube neutrodyne can be made just as well as a five-tube one.

The drawing shows the hook-up of such a two-tube receiver. The coil marked "C" consists of sixty turns of No. 22 single cotton-covered wire on a three-inch cardboard tube. At the eighth turn from the bottom a tap is made and the aerial wire connected to it. The upper end of the coil goes to the grid of the first tube, which should be a UV201A or a C301. The bottom end goes to the ground and to the negative side of the filament wiring.

VARIABLE CONDENSER.

Across the grid and filament is connected a variable condenser of .0005 mfd. capacity. This is the equivalent of the usual eleven-plate instrument.

Between the first and second tube is inserted a standard neutroformer in the regular manner. One side of the primary goes to the plate of the first tube, the other to the positive side of the amplifier battery, which should not be less than 45 volts.

The secondary of the neutroformer is shunted by another .00025 mfd. variable condenser. If the rotary plates are connected to the frames, there will be little or no hand capacity effects.

The neutralizing condenser is connected between the grid of the amplifier tube and the plate of the neutroformer secondary. As with any neutrodyne set, all wires, especially those between the neutroformer and the socket, must be kept just as short as possible.

ANY DETECTOR BULB.

The second tube can be any detector bulb. The UV200 or the C300 will give the best results, but if a storage battery is not on hand a UV199 or WD12 can be used in this tube. The difference in sensitiveness is small.

A receiver such as this one is an excellent one for a beginner in radio to build. It is non-regenerative, works well and can be enlarged at any time by the addition of either radio or audio frequency stages of amplification. The audio is connected to the set after the telephone receivers, the radio goes between the present first tube and the detector.

It will be noticed that the grid leak in the hook-up is marked 1½ megohms. The value is usually correct for hard detector tubes like the UV199 or WD12, but the condenser should be left for experiment. Modern radio bulbs are fairly uniform, but they cannot be trusted.

TWO POPULAR DANCE ORCHESTRAS TO PLAY

The pieces of popular dance orchestras those of Paul Whiteman and Vincent Lopez, will appear on the same program for WEAF's afternoon concert Saturday evening. Both Whiteman's and Lopez' orchestras will broadcast from 11 to midnight. Lopez's style is somewhat different from Whiteman's. Whiteman emphasizes the symphonic features of the compositions, Lopez devotes his energies to "getting over" the dance rhythm so that you can keep your feet still while he is playing. The radio audience will have an excellent opportunity to decide between the merits of these two orchestras and certainly their work will receive a sympathetic chord in every listener.

SIGNALS PICKED UP IN YOSEMITE VALLEY

With a portable receiving set installed at the bottom of Yosemite Valley, between 5,000 and 5,000 feet in depth, Kenneth Hughes amateur radio experimenter, has made some excellent receiving records.

After observations made on a deep cut about seven miles long he has been led to believe that it is possible to hear other waves from great distances despite natural barriers. He has reported amateur stations in all nine radio districts.

DO YOU LIKE THE NEW PROGRAM ARRANGEMENT?

Designed to Help Both the DX Hound and the Concert Lover

How do you like the new program arrangement?

We think it is so simple and convenient that not only will you like it at first sight, but we will not need to explain it.

You DX hounds will find it just what you are looking for, as it will save you the time of waiting until the station signs off before you record it. For example, if it's a violin solo you hear, it's a simple matter to run through the list and see what station is broadcasting a violin solo at that particular time, and in most cases you have the matter clinched just like that.

Then you fans who are simply seeking the best in radio will find it very easy to select your particular choice of broadcasting, whether it is orchestra, organ selections, talks, or something else.

The meters are given in parentheses after the call letters of each station and this gives an added help in identification.

So as not to cumber up the main list, we have omitted the mileage, but at the same time we have enlarged the "Coast to Coast Timetable" so that the mileage of any station may be readily found there.

The local stations will still be printed in the old style, both in detail and in easily read type. This includes WNAC, WGI and WTAT.

Try this new style of program tonight and then drop a line to the radio editor of the American and tell him whether you like them. The new style involves a great deal of extra labor and care, but we feel that nothing is too good for a Boston American radio fan.

ARMY'S GREAT RELAY STATION IS OPENED

Leavenworth, Kan., April 3.—One of the largest radio stations in the world, with the most modern equipment to act as a "go between" for United States Army radio stations on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, was in operation at Fort Leavenworth, today.

The station, which was built at a cost of approximately $300,000, is known as "WUD, Central Relay Point." It will serve radio stations on the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth corps area headquarters in Chicago, Omaha, Fort Sam Houston and Fort Douglas. Messages from the Pacific Coast also will be relayed from this station to Washington.

INTERESTING TEST MADE WITH MAGNET

An ordinary horse-shoe magnet can produce some interesting effects in a vacuum tube. The magnet placed closely with its field passing through the space of the grid and plate of the tube will retard or speed the passage of the charged bodies across the intervening space. By regeneration, can in a measure be controlled in this way.

English Trains Have Radio

As a result of successful tests with radio on trains, it is announced that Pullman parlor cars in England will probably be fitted with wireless in the near future. About 180 such cars are now in service on British railways.

Radio Receiving Conditions Tonight

Radio receiving conditions tonight from stations broadcasting in the eastern section as far west as the Mississippi River will be good. Stations in the West will not tune in so well, due to a low barometric pressure.

The Listener

Listener, Jr., made desperate efforts to land the talk on "Aquarium Management" from State College, Pennsylvania, but missed the right combinations. He wanted to get, if possible, a balanced ration for the family goldfish.

Sequence picked up by the inter-national jiggle of a knob:
First Voice (an announcer)—"We are pleased to announce ..."
Miss De Blank, who has just finished her group of piano solos, will appear in the near future on our program."
Second Voice (upon entering on the golf stance)—"Now this is all wrong."

A popular tenor was billed locally in "I'm Going South." And it so happened that the title of the next number was "Keep A-Going."

ASSOCIATION AIMS TO STOP PROPAGANDA

New York, April 3 (Universal)—The newly-organized American Radio Association springs into existence with one chief ambition—and that to rid the air of all propaganda and "boosting" talks.

Executive Secretary Alfred M. Caddell said today: "Some action is imperative to head off what threatens to become a great handicap to the radio industry."

The Radio Association will ask the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Associated Advertising Agencies and other organizations to co-operate in an effort to keep all radio programs disinterested and propaganda free.

NEW HAVEN ROAD MAN HAS POWERFUL SET

One of the most powerful, semi-portable radio sets owned by a Greater Boston amateur is that of George Ray Townsend, consulting engineer of the Mechanical department of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad. Hooking up his outfit in his private car, Mr. Townsend can get all stations east of Mississippi and, using a high aerial at his Winchester home, he reaches Pacific Coast stations with ease.

The set is a 10-tube super heterodyne with a detector unit, an oscillator unit, and three stages of radio frequency unit, having two push and pull on the final stage.

WEAF Back on 500 Watts

After having completed certain experiments with its high power transmitter, WEAF has resumed broadcasting with its regular 500 watt equipment.

DON'T PAY HIGH PRICES FOR RADIO OUTFITS AND SUPPLIES

To get all the distant stations you must have the right sort of equipment —that is the only kind we carry.

2,555 DROPPED BY NEW HAVEN DURING YEAR

Report Also Shows Continuing Effects of Strike; Deficit Cut $1,948,662

New York, April 3.—Improvement in the operations of the New Haven Railroad during 1923 over the preceding year was emphasized today in the annual report showing a deficit of $2,517,105 after all charges, which was $1,948,662 less than in 1922.

The number of employes was reduced 2,555 during the year.

Continuing effects of the shopcraft strikes and severe Winter weather early in 1922 were felt in the three months of 1922, the report stated, a period in which expenses and charges usually show an excess over revenues.

DEFICIT REDUCED.

"With the return of more normal operating conditions, aided by a record volume of freight traffic," it added, "the company earned surpluses in excess of the last nine months, except for a small deficit in May, and the deficit of $4,688,234 which had accrued in the first three months was reduced to $2,917,105 for the year.

"These results were made possible by the effective use of the additional facilities provided during the past seven years at an expenditure of more than $60,000,000.

"The prospects are encouraging for a material curtailment, as to charges for 1924, provided normal business continues and there are no unforeseen increases in operating costs."

REVENUES INCREASE.

Operating revenues for the year were $133,940,586, an increase of $10,693,945 over 1922. Freight revenue increased $7,254,697 and passenger revenue increased $2,943,248.

The total number of employes for the year was 33,219, as against 35,774 in 1922. Total payments for labor of classes were $65,024,106, an increase of $7,074,814.

E. J. Pearson, president of the road, urged the public to refrain from urging non-compensatory service or improvements which do not increase revenues or decrease operating costs.

DENIES AIM AT B. & M.

He denied the company sought to control the management of the Boston & Maine, and urged stockholders of both roads to unite in adopting a co-operative policy to work out transportation problems.

Declaring the road was suffering a handicap from motor truck competition, Mr. Pearson said the public must realize that if it is to have efficient rail transportation it must not hamper the railroads by allowing the use of the highways for a nominal charge.

"It seems certain," he said, "that the par value of the stock and the indebtedness of the New Haven Company are more than supported by the physical property embraced in the New Haven system and the value of other properties in which it has investments."

BEAUTY CALLS FOR DIAMONDS, THEN SWOONS

Haughty Young Miss, Starving, Seeks Job in Fashion Pageant

New York, April 3.—A haughty young beauty, who carried herself with the air of a genuine but slightly bedraggled princess, swept into the Hotel McAlpin and announced that she was willing to take part in the forthcoming fashion pageant and dance, which is to be held there.

DEMANDS DIAMONDS.

She was shown to the office in charge of selecting mannequins for the event, and was told to report for work on the afternoon of April 10.

Then she went out to the anteroom where a dozen or so models and actresses were waiting for interviews, drew herself up in a most regal manner and announced:

"Now I simply must have diamonds if I'm going to be in that parade. You know I couldn't cheapen myself by appearing without them—like any other model. My type of beauty cries out for diamonds, and I've got to get 'em somehow."

FAILS UNCONSCIOUS.

Then she crumpled up, swayed uncertainly toward a chair and pitched to the floor unconscious. The other girls promptly fainted and called the house physician, who said that the haughty lady was suffering from malnutrition, and as a matter of fact, she was just about starved to death.

When the girl opened her eyes a short time later, she wasn't a royal lady at all. She said her right name was Marie La Rene, and that she had run away from her home at Hannibal, Mo., in the hope that she could achieve fame and wealth in the theatrical world.

FORMER PASTOR OF PEOPLE'S TEMPLE DIES

The Rev. Arabel H. Nazarian, D. D., for thirty-two years a pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Greater Boston, is dead at his home on Iowell st., Jamaica Plain. Back Bay.

Dr. Nazarian was born at Harpoot, Armenia. He came to this country about forty years ago without knowing a word of English.

Rev. Nazarian.

He took up theological studies at Boston University, and was graduated in 1892. At once he joined the Church of the Epworth Conference. An able scholar, master of seven languages, and a financier and executive, as well as an able pastor, his rise in Methodism was rapid.

His first church was the Dorchester Street M. E. Church in South Boston. He has also filled the pulpits of the Bethany Church in Roxbury, the Mt. Bellingham Church in Chelsea and the People's Temple.

DR. GORDON'S LONG PASTORATE HONORED

Tributes from the pulpit by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, by Bishop William Lawrence, and by the Rev. J. Edgar Park were extended to the Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., at special exercises in honor of the fortieth anniversary of his installation as minister in the New Old South Church.

Rev. G. A. Gordon

An avalanche of letters of congratulation and telegrams from all over the world crowded his mails.

For nearly two hours after the ceremonies in the church Dr. Gordon stood in the receiving line in the vestry accepting personal greetings, with Mrs. Gordon and their daughter, Mrs. Ruth Manning Gordon, from thousands who crowded in to congratulate him.

"And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth."

Good, generous Providence having given man so much, the least he can do for himself is to establish a permanent place THAT HE OWNS on this earth over which he has dominion.

When a man owns his own house, he is SOMEBODY. Until he DOES own his house, he is only somebody else's TENANT, a useful, cash producing personage, but a different being from the man that OWNS his own home.

Be able to say, "This piece of the earth, and this house on it are MINE." That gives to man a character, and an assurance in life that nothing else can give.

Everybody remembers Lord Chatham's magnificent tribute to a poor man's cottage:

"The poorest man may, in his cottage, bid defiance to all the force of the Crown. It may be frail; its roof may shake; the wind may blow through it; the storms may enter, the rain may enter—but the King of England cannot enter; all his forces dare not cross the threshold of the ruined tenement!"

The history of human beings, slowly changing from nomadic barbarism, when men and their families wandered over the face of the earth, driving their cattle to fresh pastures, has been a steady progress toward SETTLED, PERMANENT, INDIVIDUAL HOMES.

Civilization as we know it began when the man OWNED HIS OWN HOUSE, LIVED IN IT, STAYED IN ONE PLACE, DEVELOPED IT, and FOUGHT FOR HIS RIGHT TO KEEP ALL OTHERS OUT OF IT.

There isn't much difference in real dignity between the ancient nomad wandering from one PASTURE to another and the modern city nomad wandering from one FLAT to another, wondering whether the landlord will raise his rent, put him out, or tear down and rebuild.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME, watch it grow in value, get YOUR SHARE of that much discussed "unearned increment," which means the increased value of land caused by rising population.

Realize especially what MODERN TRANSPORTATION MEANS.

Men lived together, congested in cities, the poor in slums, those better off in monotonous rows of little houses, because transportation was lacking. The choice was to live all crowded together, or walk miles in the country, or spend hours jogging in slow cars drawn by horses. Many have never realized that what was once "far away," is now NEAR.

Now you may go to a beautiful suburb, or to the far uptown, drawn by the power of electricity, in a matter of minutes.

Green fields where you can now buy land cheaply, small villages where you can get space for a house, a yard and a garden, will eventually become part of a GREAT CITY.

What would cost you hundreds now will be worth thousands, or what would cost you thousands will be worth tens of thousands.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME AND WATCH IT GROW IN VALUE.

Buy with caution and care, rely on YOUR judgment, believe ONLY WHAT YOU SEE, not everything that is told you. If they tell you that sidewalks, sewers, electric light and more transportation are coming, don't take that for granted; it may only be overenthusiastic salesmanship.

Ask the local Mayor, ask the citizens, WALK from the railroad station to the land that is offered you, that you may know how far or how near it is. Don't let yourself be deceived by the flashing, dashing real estate automobiles.

Many give the ride free. Ride out to the place; then unless you have made up your mind that you DON'T want it, WALK BACK TO THE STATION.

But remember that in these fortunate days of the automobile, three miles from the railroad train or the trolley means no more than "ten minutes' walk" in the old days before motors annihilated distance.

Every man that plans owning his own home should plan also his automobile AS PART OF THE HOME, because it is just as much a PART of the modern home as the roof, or the bathtub, or the place to keep the baby carriage.

If you have a flat in the city a car costs you $35 to $55 a month merely for its lodging. A car in the country costs you practically nothing for room rent, only the gas, oil and tires that you choose to use. A ready-made garage back of your own house costs only a trifle.

Living away from the centre of the city in a house with light on all sides gives a 100 percent. better chance to your children. It means changing YOUR outlook upon life, it means ranking of you one of those that ACTUALLY OWNS PART OF THE UNITED STATES.

It means INDEPENDENCE. Buy your house, get it PAID for as quickly as you can, above all, buy what you know you CAN pay for, and have the satisfaction of seeing what you own grow in value, and the infinitely greater satisfaction of leaving your wife and children, when you must leave them, WITH A ROOF OVER THEIR HEADS THAT THEY ACTUALLY OWN.

You came into the world with nothing, you sat up in your little crib with nothing but a foolish little cap on your head. Before you leave the world make sure you have A FIRST-CLASS, WELL-MADE ROOF, A COMFORTABLE HOUSE, THAT YOU OWN, AND THAT NOBODY CAN TAKE FROM YOU.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME. Be a real American.

LISTEN, WORLD! -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

NEWSPAPERS have become first-class mail. On February 1 newspapers were accorded the same treatment as letters and other first-class mail. Your news concerning the nation will reach you as promptly as the letter from home telling about Cousin Susy's wedding. The government is going to go to a great deal of trouble and expense in order to bring that newspaper to you as quickly as the home letter. Is that trouble and expense justified? The government considers newspapers first-class mail, BUT DO YOU CONSIDER NEWSPAPERS FIRST-CLASS MAIL?

You might as well be frank about it, Emma and Mary and Kate. We know, and the world knows, that the average woman's interest in a newspaper begins with the divorce scandal on the first page and ends with the dieting direction in the magazine section. Haven't the men used this as proof of our limited intelligence since the first cave reporter carved the first news copy on a mastodon's shinbone? They have. But with all their grins and sneers, men have never realized why women are not usually interested in newspapers. Here's why:

BECAUSE CONNECTION HAS NOT YET BEEN ESTABLISHED FOR US BETWEEN WORLD NEWS AND OUR PERSONAL DESTINIES.

Men aren't interested in newspapers because their brain bulk aches unless it's focussed on news type. They're interested because world news affects their jobs. The gossip in the newspapers is merely a projection of the gossip in the shop. They want to know about the fall of the German mark, the rise of the Labor party in England, the situation in Greece, the Teapot Dome scandal in Washington and the probable effects of a Democratic or Republican election. BECAUSE LONG EXPERIENCE HAS TAUGHT MEN THAT THEIR OWN CAREERS ARE MADE OR MARRED by such incidents.

Men are right in thinking this. And in the old days women were right in thinking that a knowledge of world movements would benefit them but little. Their lives were controlled by father, husband or master. They had no hand in shaping their own destinies. Let the men read the paper. Women worked their ends in more personal ways. But those days are no more. The woman now makes her own destiny. She has a job and a vote as well as the man—she has separate and distinct civic duties. She must pay taxes, serve on juries, help make laws. All these things imply competition with men. Unless she makes a good showing in her new position she is going to be exploited, imposed upon, cheated and ridiculed.

Even if she does not venture into public life, she feels the pressure of those new standards in her home. Her children are taught by well-informed, progressive teachers. They expect a well-informed, progressive mother. Her husband works with or is served by well-informed, progressive women stenographers or operatives. He expects the same brand of intelligence in his wife.

For our own protection and the protection of our homes and children, you and I will have to begin reading the newspapers, Emma and Mary and Kate. We'll have to take an interest in more than the Rogers-Salm elopement. We must begin to realize that trouble in the Balkans may mean shell shock for young Willie some day. We must learn to see the possible connection between graft in Washington and the extra taxes which will make it hard to buy that little bungalow next year. And we must ease our own heartaches by contact with the heartaches of two continents, and merge our petty perspectives in the mighty horizon of human affairs.

WE MUST MAKE NEWSPAPERS FIRST-CLASS MAIL IN OUR LIVES, IF WE DON'T—THE WORLD WILL SCRAP US AS OBSOLETE DECORATIONS, SISTER!

Children Destitute

Editor Helping Hand:

Here is a very needy case I would like to bring to your attention, as they are very poor. The husband has had no work all Winter other than odd jobs. The children cannot go to school from lack of clothes. There are five children, girl ten, boy eight, girl six, girl four and baby six months. They are all destitute; shoes, stockings and underwear are greatly needed. The mother wears size 36 and 5 shoe. Blankets or bedding would help them. The name is Mrs. F. H. L.

I am asking help for them and have written them of my request to you. I hope some kind soul through your paper can bring them help. MRS. H. P.

Offers Books

Editor Helping Hand:

Can you tell me where I can find one or two who, unable to attend high school, are trying to study alone and would be glad of some books I have and what little help I might give by correspondence? MISS J. A. P.

Thank you. You are extending a helping hand indeed. We will let you know of what answers we have to your generous offer.

A Mother's Thanks

Editor Helping Hand:

I wish to write and thank you for giving my name to the lady who sent my little girl a coat. Also for an overcoat that was left for my husband. A lady brought it and left it when I was out. I wish you would thank the stranger for me, as she did not leave her name. I want to say that both were just what I needed. MRS. M. McD.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON BLOCKING WAY TO SUCCESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE idea that obsesses the tax makers is that the rich men should be taxed heavily and the poor gently.

If we are going to continue with our present principles of taxation this idea is perhaps a fair one.

But there is one delusion that has a stronghold in most people's minds: It is that the rich men are a fixed class. They are rich, they always have been rich, they always will be rich, and their fathers were rich before them.

A good deal of economic, revolutionary propaganda is based on this erroneous condition.

As Otto H. Kahn said the other day:

"It is a well-known fact, characteristic of America, that our wealthiest men are not those who inherited their possessions, but who started at the bottom of the ladder. That is as it should be, but it cannot continue so if our present taxation policy continues.

"The road to material success is blocked to the newcomer by the barricade of surtaxes."

There is truth in this. Because extreme surtaxes that are demanded by those who wish to level things down, fortify those who are already wealthy against would-be competitors.

The result is that while big business continues to expand and can find plenty of funds for doing so, there has been a distinct slackening of new and independent ventures.

The trouble with this is that it takes a little thinking to see it.

It does not take any thinking at all to tax the rich heavily just because they are rich.

It is always popular to attack the rich. The mob is always ready to stone the successful. And Congressmen and Senators get their votes from the mob.

But there is very real danger in this of destroying the initiative which has made the United States great. That initiative is the desire to succeed and to lay up money. It is the principle of thrift and prosperity.

The hordes of Communists and Socialists of Europe have been quite successful in their campaign of ruin. Americans ought to have too much sense to cut off their nose to spite their face.

There is a good deal of danger in this country from those who, desiring to protect the workers, are in a fair way to destroy all incentive to work.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE LOWLY OYSTER

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

WILLIAM FIRTH WELLS, of the New York State Conservation Commission, is credited with having no only saved the oyster from approaching extinction, but also set it on the high road of eugenics, by bringing its propagation under human control, or, as is said, domesticating it. No creature domesticated under man's care, has ever failed to improve, bodily and temperamentally, and therefore high hopes are entertained for the future of the oyster.

It is confidently predicted that after a while we shall have selected breeds of oysters, just as we have of cattle, sheep and fowls as also many fruits, and considering the almost magical results that selection, crossing, cultivation, and breeding have heretofore achieved, it does not seem impossible that in a generation or so our appetites will be regaled with oysters of a delicacy of flavor never yet savored.

It seems that the difficulty that had to be overcome in the effort to bring the propagation of oysters under artificial control was due to the extreme minuteness and delicacy of the larvae of the oyster. These look like microscopic specks of glass only the one-hundred-and-fiftieth of an inch in length.

They are "free swimming," and sometimes wander far, even to a distance of several miles from the parent bed. Finally, they sink to the bottom and attach themselves as little disks, a twentieth of an inch, or so in diameter, to stones or other fixed objects. These disks grow into little oysters.

Not being able to deal successfully with the natural larvae, the experimenters turned to the problem of fertilizing the eggs artificially, on a plan similar to that which the late Jacques Loeb employed in fertilizing the eggs of sea urchins. This being effected, they had the larvae under control from the start.

At the experimental oyster hatchery at Bayville Bridge, on Long Island, Mr. Wells has succeeded in concentrating the artificially propagated larvae, and bringing them to the stage where they set themselves upon fixed objects to begin their final growth.

All the steps from the fertilization of the eggs to the development of the young oysters from the larvae are now performed under artificial conditions and inspection, thus making this one considerable of the almost magical results that selection, crossing, cultivation, and breeding have heretofore achieved, it does not seem impossible that in a generation or so our appetites will be regaled with oysters of a delicacy of flavor never yet savored.

And now we shall see how much better we can manage for the oyster than nature alone did, for it appears that nature has cary of flavor never yet savored.

Perhaps the oyster would not thank us for applying eugenic principles to him. If he could understand the purely selfish motives that govern our apparent benevolent activity in its behalf; but then, if he has an ancestral memory, he may reflect that, after all, he was just as badly off among the giant-jawed Jurassians in the days when he himself grew to a length of twenty-inches, with the result of being much the better fitted to the huge mouths that devoured him.

ESTABLISH A HIGH STANDARD WITH YOUR CHILDREN

Copyright, 1924, by International Feature Service Inc.

Parents, if you children believe that your principles are high and that you are above doing anything wrong, don't do anything which will shatter this opinion.

As long as your boys and girls think you are truthful, honest and free from deceit and just, they will think of you as being ideal.

They will feel that under no circumstances would you do anything which is not right.

Other children may try to convince your children that you are not what you appear to be, but as long as they have no proof, they will not believe any wrong of you.

Once they are deceived by you in word or action, they become convinced you are not what you pretend to be and they are quite likely to believe any stories they may hear about you.

It is a sad time in a child's life when he learns his parents do not measure up to the ideal he had established for them.

After such a conviction there can never be just the same feeling there was before the fact became known.

Establish a high standard with your children and live up to it.
